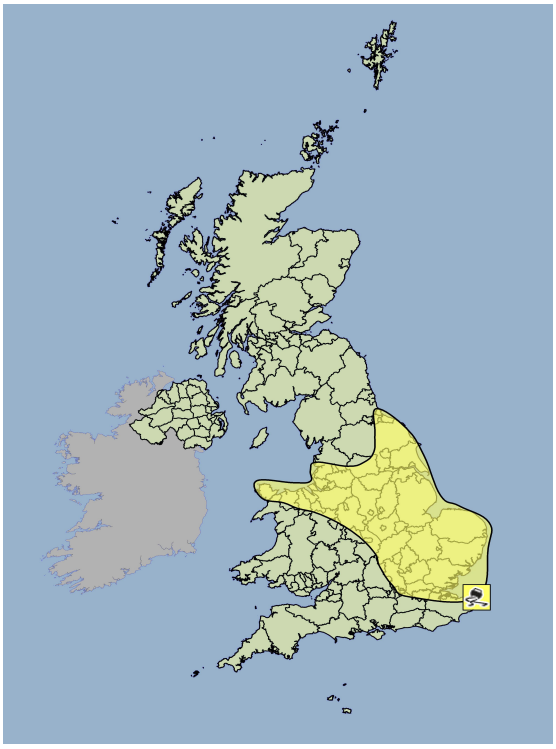
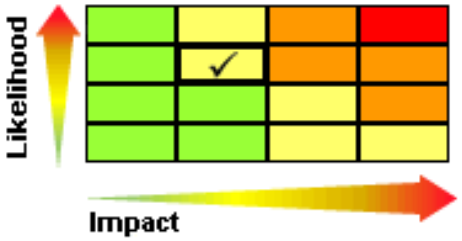
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Road temperatures will fall widely below freezing overnight with icy surfaces likely to develop in places, especially where showers have occurred on Tuesday afternoon. In addition, a few showers of hail, sleet and snow are possible overnight. These could very locally produce a slight covering, adding to the ice risk.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 20:00 on Tue, 13th Jan 2015 until 10:00 on Wed, 14th Jan 2015

Icy patches are likely to form on untreated surfaces on Tuesday night and into Wednesday morning, especially where wintry showers have occurred.

The public should be aware of the potential for difficult driving conditions.
